

50 Claude Workflows for Professionals

Research, marketing, operations, finance and management · The Claude Operator

Fifty ready-to-run workflows, ten for each kind of work. Every one follows the same pattern: Input → Claude does → You review → Output. The skill column names the skill from your library that does most of the work, so each workflow gets more reliable as your library grows.

How to run any workflow

- 1 Check the risk tier. Automate freely: a spot-check is enough. With review: run the Operator Check before you use it. Human-controlled: Claude prepares, a person decides and acts.
- 2 Brief it. If the skill is installed, one line is enough: "Run [skill] on [input] for [purpose]." If not, write the eight-part Delegation Brief.
- 3 Review the column "You review" first. It's the part most likely to be wrong, or most costly if it is.
- 4 Done it three times? Package it as a skill. Run cleanly for a month? Consider a schedule, within its tier.

Examples are generic. Replace the inputs with your own files, and never put red-bucket data (passwords, card and bank details, ID numbers, health records) into any workflow.

Research and analysis

Finding, checking and making sense of information. The rule: name the sources to trust, a source beside every claim, a cut-off date.
